An Excerpt from "Will You Forgive Me?" by Tony Ross (Celebrate Writing 2019)

We all have a story, one that shaped us, molded us into who we are. My story has had a lot of negative, some positive. But at 50 years old, I have finally realized my story doesn't have to end with addiction, that I am in control of the ending and I can write the final chapters, ones that include sobriety, education, family, and happiness.

We don't have to let our past determine our future. Take control and start writing your own story, the story you want your life to be. Please, before you end up in jail, just know that you have opportunities through programs and determination, you are in control.

Write your own ending!
